

Research Report: who is the highest goal scorer in fifa world cup history?

Research Report

Introduction

The FIFA World Cup has seen many legendary goal scorers, but one name stands out as the all-time leader in goals. This report explores the record holder, their achievements, and the context of their performance in the tournament's history.

Key Findings

- Miroslav Klose of Germany is the highest goal scorer in FIFA World Cup history with 16 goals, achieved across the 2002, 2006, and 2010 tournaments.
- Klose surpassed the previous record of 15 goals held by Brazil's Ronaldo, who played in the 1998, 2002, and 2006 World Cups.
- Klose's goals were crucial in Germany's campaigns, including a second-place finish in 2002 and a third-place finish in 2010, highlighting his consistency and impact on the team.

Conclusion

Miroslav Klose's record of 16 goals in FIFA World Cup history remains unbroken, cementing his legacy as one of the greatest strikers in the tournament's history. His achievements with Germany underscore his role in the nation's footballing success during his era.

Sources

- <https://www.espn.com/soccer/fifa-world-cup/story/3634560/miroslav-klose-the-german-who-broke-the-world-cup-goals-record>
- <https://www.fifa.com/fifaplus/en/players/miroslav-klose>